CARBON JUNIOR LADIES' AID ELECTS OFFICERS

The Christmas meeting of the Junior Aid of Knox United Church was held at the home of Mrs. N.
Nash on Monday evening, December 13. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President, Mrs. J.E. Adams.
Vice-president, Mrs. E. Campbell.
Secretary, Mrs. Hughes.
Treasurer, Mrs. E. Fox.
At the close of the meeting the Christmas theme was carried out.

Laugh a little now and then.
It brightens life a lot;
You can see the brighter side
Just as well as not.
Don't go mournfully around,
Gloomy and forlorn;
Try and make your fellowmen
Glad that you were born.

LIONS COLUMN

The reports flowing into the International office from Lions clubs everywhere show that last month's observance of "District Governors' Week" proved a remarkable demonstration of support to their respective district leaders. The Lions pledged themselves to back up and co-operate for the upbuilding and strengthening of the individual clubs and the association. It is this very co-ordination that has made Lions International the great and active influential association which it is today. Yes, it is truly a marvelous working organization that we have in our club. It is a working organization because its leaders are men inspired with a deep sense of responsibility toward their community and by an inner urge to render unselfish service. They fulfill their office at a great personal sacrifice, giving freely and unstintingly of their time and abilities for the welfare of Lionsism and of all the people whom Lionsism serves.

So should we be deeply thankful for them, work with them and support them to the fullest. Everything they do is for the betterment of Carbon and district. That is what a service club is pledged to do. We are in a country village and do not have all city facilities for recreation for our boys and girls but with co-operation of the clubs that have made possible what we already have in Carbon, there is no reason why Carbon won't prosper during 1949. So let's support all clubs this next year in every way possible.
Remember, the town or village
without a club—either I.O.O.F., Lions or Community Club—is often a dead one.

LEGENDS OF HOLLY

Many beliefs are connected with the Christmas holly:

It is said that whoever brings the holly into the house first, either husband or wife, is the one who will rule in the ensuing year.

Contests were played, a Christmas story given by Mrs. Warren and an exchange of gifts was made. A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses for the evening.

Merry Christmas!

Above all other things in our memory at this Christmas is the thought of the splendid associations with friends of this store that have made it possible for us to enjoy a very satisfactory year. Please accept the kind wishes of every member of our organization for a joyous Yuletide and a New Year of Health and Progress.

(By Francis James)

WHEN your best friend and her husband arrive from California or London or Bombay, you feel a little idiotic offering them, as alternative sleeping accommodation, the nearest hotel or your dog-house. Yet if you live in an average-sized, modern home, you may find that the time you get yourself, your husband and your assorted offspring adequately sheltered, there's not a cranny left to put anyone else. At least, not at first glance. But have you tried casting your eyes upward? No, not to Heaven, but to that little room under the rafters that is inhabited at present only by dusty old trunks and some atrocious people had the gall to give you when you were married.

Right now, it may not look the sort of room your best friend from California or London—or even Bombay—would care to spend the night in. But clear it out and go to work on it with some imagination, and you'll find that it can, with not too much difficulty or expense, be made into one of the most attractive rooms of your whole house.

Your chief problem, of course, will be the slanting walls, which, if improperly treated, can make the room appear small and dingy.

Since the ceiling in this type of room is apt to be about much more than a patch, it is foolish to emphasize it by doing it in a paper that contrasts with the walls. Your best bet will be to choose a wallpaper that can be effectively carried straight across the ceiling. This, in addition to disguising the defect of lack of ceiling, will give continuity and an illusion of size to the room.

Where possible, the paper should be in one of the "cool" tones—pale green, pale blue or pale yellow—so these give the eye a rest. Hot, positive colors, on the other hand, will seem to drag your slanting walls even closer together. Avoid an over-symmetrical design, such as a stripes, check or dot. Since your paper must run vertically up the wall, biasy across the slant, and horizontally across the ceiling, a symmetrical paper could have a very dizzying effect.

If your room includes a dormer window, don't feel that this adds to your difficulties. Instead, make use of it. Make it the focal point of the room by curtaining it in a sheer, light-inviting material with valance and tie-backs in a heavier, plain fabric to blend with the main pattern in your wallpaper. Then, beneath the window, build in a dressing table and skirt it in the fabric of the valance and tie-backs. On either side of the window you could build in save-high chests of drawers for additional storage.

A double bed, or twin beds, with a spread in interesting fabric to blend with your wallpaper, and an easy chair or two covered in a blending or matching material, complete the picture. And there you'll have a room where a best friend from Bombay or even Chattanooga would be very glad to spend the night.

COSTLY HEADGEAR

BOSTON—Bostonians who thought they had seen about everything in women's hats were in for a surprise when the late Mr. Miller, of the Boston style show, featured was a 14-karat gold hat with diamond trimmings—valued at $10,000.

CARE OF WASHERS

Keep the moving parts of your washing machine properly oiled, bolts in place, and the machine will last longer than a steam locomotive.

U.S. Judge Rules No Crime To Call Neighbor "Screwball"

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—It's all right to call your neighbor "screwball," a federal judge ruled in the lower court. "According to authorities on American slang," said Judge Delaplane, "the word 'screwball' has many synonyms such as blockhead, cabbage-head, dunce, gaff, goose, multi-head, mutton-head, sap, saphead and squarehead."

The judge upheld a lower court ruling that Navy Capt. Thomas J. Kennedy wronged his neighbor James F. Crouch by having him arrested for disorderly conduct for using the term. Crouch sued the Navy officer for $1,400 damages in the lower court.

But, said the judge, it's not a crime to use the epithet. "Even in New Jersey," said the judge, "it is recognized that not every derogatory epithet addressed by one person to another constitutes an offense against the law."

Crouch called Kennedy a "screwball" during an argument over residential zoning regulations in Silver Springs, Md., where both men live.

But, said the judge, it's not a crime to use the epithet. "Even in New Jersey," said the judge, "it is recognized that not every derogatory epithet addressed by one person to another constitutes an offense against the law."

Highlanders Are Preferred As Fur Traders

LONDON—More than 1,000 young men from all parts of the world have been sent to fur traders in the Canadian northward—but from Highland Scotmen are getting the preference.

Hundreds of inquiries have been received by the Hudson's Bay Company in London about training for trading post men in the Arctic.

But the company said preference goes to young Scotmen between 18 and 23 and particularly those who have never lived outside the highlands.

"Physically and mentally they are best suited for life and work in these isolated posts," said a company official. He added that once they leave the highlands, however, and get a taste of theatre and football matches, they are "spoiled" for the isolated life of the north.

Eight highland Scotmen recently left to take up Arctic posts for the company. They will be followed by another 20 soon to be chosen.

The 1948 Canadian wool clip is expected to be 8.4 million pounds which is a decline of 17 per cent. from that of 1947. STOCKHOLM, Sweden—A widow aged 45, rather good looking and attractive with a net fortune of about 1,000,000 kronor (nearly $300,000) advertised in the newspaper Dagens Nyheter recently for a husband with "debts amounting to 1,000,000 kronor."

She stipulated that he must be "cultivated, aged about 50, and lacking means." Perhaps not sufficiently qualified as to debts," she added, "should not apply." She ran her ad in the personal columns over the signature "tax marriage—safe future."

Dynamite Shifts Rocks--

WHILE drilling rocks for blasting is slow work, it is one of the surest methods of breaking up very hard rock, particularly of the "nigger head" type, and is certainly the method which requires the smallest amount of dynamite. Because this is a matter of general agricultural interest, we are here giving detailed instructions for the proper use of explosives in blasting boulders.

There are three general methods of blasting boulders, blockholing, snakeholing and mudcapping. We shall deal with blockholing first.

Blockholing

This consists of drilling a hole into the boulder and loading it with a relatively small amount of dynamite. The hole should be drilled about half way through the boulder and may be an inch or larger in diameter. It is usually best to remove the dynamite from the paper shell and pack it firmly in the bottom of the hole. When the proper amount of dynamite has been put inside it is packed down carefully using an iron rod with a flat end to tamp it firmly into the bottom of the hole.

The blasting cap is then crimped to the lower end of the fuse and pressed into a small hole about the size of the cap, which is previously made in the dynamite charge with a sharp wooden stick. The dynamite is now pressed tightly around the cap and the hole is then filled up with clay sufficiently moist to tamp firmly. For blockholing a relatively weak dynamite will do, 20 or 40 per cent. explosive being sufficiently strong where the explosive is perfectly confined as is the case in blockholing.

The accompanying table gives the amounts of dynamite that should be used for different sizes of rock by the various methods of boulder blasting. This table, however, is worked out for 50 per cent. straight dynamite.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

What Of Joseph?

I often think of that other night when angels sang from afar. To the shepherds on the hill, a song, and the wise men followed a star; or the Babe which lay in a manger, the loving care of a mother milk. What did the father do?

The songs and tales of that bright scene tell much of the mother's love. Of the shepherds, the wisemen and the star which shone in the heavenly above. But little is said of Joseph. There, and I'm sure it could be told, that he did the tasks a father does to shelter his own from the cold. Those who have known a father's love, his silent protecting care. Would know that on that night of the first Christmas, Joseph was there. When we sing a song of mother and child, we sing of the father at the birth. Let us sing in praise of Joseph true, and recognize his worth!

Fig. 2 Snakeholing a boulder to roll it out or break it up.

Fig. 3 A boulder with a mudcapped dynamite charge properly placed.

The explosive, being confined on the underside by the earth, can exert a powerful blow on the boulder and push it out, or if a sufficient charge is used will break it in pieces.

This is one of the easiest and most successful methods of boulder blasting. The best explosive being 40 or 50 per cent. dynamite, though where the soil is heavy and has good resistance a 30 per cent. dynamite is satisfactory. Where it is expected to break the boulder up, a fairly heavy charge has to be used and stronger dynamite is better than the weaker percentage.

Mudcapping

This method is illustrated in figure 3 of the accompanying drawings and for it the high percentage dynamites are recommended. A good method of mudcapping consists of removing the dynamite from the shell and packing it in a conical heap on the boulder, then after inserting the cap and fuse, covering it with several inches of thick, heavy mud. Where a very large boulder is to be moved, the explosive is not mudcapped, but the boulder up to the mud cartridges, some times six, are arranged as compactly as possible at a given point on the boulder. The cap is inserted in one of the cartridges and the whole charge covered with mud.

The explosive should be placed on the boulder at a place where the rock would be struck with a hammer where it is possible to break it in that way. This may be on the top or the side. In mudcapping it is important that the stone be not embedded in the earth, but that it should lie on top with as much of its sides free from soil as possible. Frequently a snake-hole shot is used to roll boulders on to the surface, after which they can be mudcapped.

Left-Hand Shots Scoring Well This Season

Seven of the top ten scorers in the National Hockey League shoot the puck from the left side. On December 1, the ten leading scorers were Grant Warwick, Boston; Jim Conacher, Chicago; Doug Bentley, Chicago; Ted Kennedy, Toronto; Roy Conacher, Chicago; Pete Bateman, Boston; Ed Sanford, Boston; Joe Carveth, Canadiens; George Gee, Detroit; and Gays Stewart, Chicago. Of these players only Warwick, Kennedy and Carveth are right-handed.

Players, propelling the puck in from the port side have fared extremely well in the scoring race throughout the year. Only eight players in the last 36 seasons has the NHL scoring champion been a right-handed shot. In all the years the top scorers was a left-handed shot, with the lefties finishing at the head of the scoring parade exclusively for the past ten seasons.

The last time a right-handed shot won the National League scoring crown was in 1927-28 when Gordie Drillon of Toronto scored 26 goals and had an equal number of assists for 52 points, to carry off the scoring title.

Other right-handers who have won the scoring championship besides Drillon are Charlie Chaceur of Toronto, who won in 1923-24 and 1934-35; Bill Cook of Rangers, who won in 1926-27 and 1928-29; Babe Dye of Toronto, who won in 1922-23 and 1924-25 and "Ace" Bailey, also of Toronto, who won in 1928-29.

Six of the eight seasons that the scoring title was won by a right-handed player, he was a member of the Toronto team. Other players who have headed the scoring parade more than one season besides Dye, Cook and Chaceur are Max Bentley, Chicago, who won in 1946-47 and 1947-48; "Sweeney" Schriner, Americans, who finished on top in 1936-37 and 1938-39; and Howie Morenz, Canadiens, leader in 1930-31 and 1937-38. Max Bentley, Schriner and Morenz were left-hand shots.

Left-hander Herb Cain of Boston won the scoring honors in 1944-45 with a total of 52 points, an all-time high for points amassed by a player in one season. In winning the crown in 1944-45, "Slim" Lach of Canadiens finished with 80 points composed of 26 goals and 54 assists. The 54 assists are the most ever scored in an NHL play.

If Warwick can continue his present scoring pace, of better than one point a game, he has a good chance to become the first right-handed shot to win the National League scoring championship since Gordie Drillon did the trick over a decade ago.

Alternate Captains

Every year the National Hockey League is entitled to three alternate captains besides the captain. The only team that does have three alternate captains is Toronto. All the rest get by with two alternate captains. The alternate captains on the six NHL clubs are as follows: Toronto—Glen Beckie, Harry Watson and Max Bentley; Detroit—Bill Gadsden and Jack Stewart; Chicago—Doug Bentley and Stan Brown; Canadiens—Billy Reay and Elmer Lach; Rangers—Wally Stanovick and Edgar Laprade; Boston—Murray Henderson and Johnny Crawford. The alternate captains are the players you see out here on the ice with the big "A" on their jerseys.

More than 5,000 spectators cheered the outcome of Canada's second national Rodeo, held at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto. Best in the straight truck class was Bernard E. Jones, a brewer, driver from London, Ont. Eugene S. Riddell, a transport driver from Chatham, Ont., emerged winner in the tractor division, and Corporal R. L. Pettenger, 23 Toronto Guy, R.C.A.S.C., topped the three-service competition. They were mighty pleased as they stepped up to receive the winners' trophies, but Bert Jones was still counting himself lucky to get in the winners' circle as Doug Chalmers, an oil company driver from Toronto, had given him an extremely close run. Drivers from Halifax to Vancouver competed in the run-offs.—S.N.A. photo.

P.E.I. Milk for U.S. Air Force

THREE times a week a huge DC-4 from the United States Air Force Base at Harmon Field, Newfoundland, calls at Summerside, Prince Edward Island, to pick up a supply of milk for the American Forces in the Old Colony.

This service was undertaken by the local Dairy, in Summerside, in 1944, on a semi-weekly schedule but the extent of the business soon made it necessary for the Americans to add an extra trip.

Since the service was inaugurated the Summerside dairy has shipped the milk in all types of containers to meet the requirements of the consignees, including bottles, paper containers and cans. Each shipment is tested by American Sanitary officers in respect to bacteria count and butterfat content.

Weather and mechanical difficulties play an important part in the regularity of delivery and on several occasions the cautious American pilots have circled the field at the Summerside Airport and returned because of adverse weather conditions. The first break in the weather, however, found them back for their load.

Arriving in the morning about 8 o'clock the huge transport is generally ready to return around noon with an average load of about 2,420 pounds of milk and other foodstuffs.

The day the writer visited the port the Americans were taking on a 3,000 lb. milk load.

The capacity of the transport is about 5,000 pounds. It is manned by a crew of five and can carry about 29 personnel on board. It is also possible for the ship to carry a load of milk and a baseball team at the same time, sport competition being keen between the two centres.

Asked what they thought of the Summerside milk, one American Officer replied, "We like it." This is possibly due to the fact that the milk regulations demanded by the Americans are the stiffest on the continent.

The local Dairy, which is managed by the local officer, is supplied by about 45 farmers within a nine mile radius of Summerside.

Producing Alsike Clover Seed Gains In Western Canada

One of the most interesting agricultural developments in recent years has been the increased production of alsike clover seed in Western Canada, reports the Plant Products Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The production there in 1948 will almost double that of Ontario, which until recently was the main alsike producing province in Canada. The chief production in the West is in northern Alberta and the Peace River area of British Columbia. Apparently the blossoms fertilize well in those areas and the climate suits the crop. As high as ten bushels of seed per acre are obtained.

Furthermore, the seed grown in the West is comparatively clean because many of the weeds such as the catchflies and tansies, which are the bane of alsike growers in Ontario, are seldom found in those areas of the West where the crop is now being grown. The total production in Western Canada for 1948 is estimated at 4,000,000 pounds as against 2,100,000 pounds in Ontario.

Great advances have been made in cleaning alsike seed in the last few years, the result of better machinery for the job. The improved machinery, which includes magnets and specific gravity types, takes out most of the impurities so that alsike seed which was almost valueless a few years ago is now being cleaned to Canadian standard grades. This new way for cleaning alsike and other seed was brought to Canada by Hungarians and other Central Europeans who escaped from Europe during the Hitler regime and brought their skills with them.

Post Card Ends A Thirty-Nine-Year Journey

NORWICH, Ont. — A post card mailed in Japan more than 39 years ago has finally arrived at Norwich, Ont., late to be delivered to Emma Nobbs, who died several years ago.

Postmarked in Tokyo March 3, 1909, the card is faded with age but the handwriting of Elizabeth Blinford, Canadian missionary who died last July, still is clear.

Two other postmarks were on the letter—the second in Tokyo on Dec. 3, 1909, and the third on Nov. 22, 1948. The final mark is partially obscured, but it may have been made in Ottaville, Ont.—only the letters "Terrell" are legible.

The letter has been delivered to Wilfred Bishop of Norwich, son of the late George Bishop whose name was mentioned on the card.

Rules For Health And Happiness

WINCHESTER, Ont. — Ontario health minister Russell T. Kofy, recently offered eight rules which, if followed, would cut down the amount of sickness we have today.

1. Have a good diet. Don't just gulp down that cup of coffee and cigarette for breakfast.

2. Strive for good posture.

3. If over 50, don't take violent exercise. Remember in 50 years the heart has been beating more than 21,000,000,000 times.

4. Even if well, see your doctor anyway.

5. Care should be taken of children's teeth.

6. A child's eyes should be tested, especially if taking mild lessons.

7. Be a boy scout. Do a good deed every day.

8. Live a cheerful life. Get a laugh to start you off right every day.

These health rules were delivered by Mr. Kofy while officiating at the opening of the new Winchester district memorial hospital.

NEW INVENTIONS

Extra Wheel Takes Over If Tire Flat

WASHINGTON. — Two inventions intended to make life easier — and safer — for the motorist feature the latest crop of new patents. One is a set of auxiliary wheels, to take on part of the car's load in emergency; the other a central master cylinder that distributes and equalizes the jolt taken up by the individual shock-absorbers at each of the four wheels.

The first invention is the work of George J. Bourke of Denver. He provides, just inboard of each of the car's wheels, an auxiliary wheel about the size used on factory dollies and trucks, mounted cater-wise on a shaft that ends in the piston of a hydraulic cylinder.

If through puncture or other cause the main tire is suddenly, or slowly, let down, the small wheel accepts its corner of the load and fluid tumbles into the cylinder from a pressure cylinder brings the car up to an even keel again.

The auxiliary wheels can also be used as hydraulic jacks, in changing tires. The invention is covered by U.S. patent 2,452,110.

There are also coil springs to help absorb transmitted jolts. The number on the patent is 2,452,105.

Helpful Hints

Brown Sugar—Which has become hard may be placed in 300F oven for half hour. You will find it will be quite soft.

Salty Soup — Slice a potato and simmer soup gently till potato pieces are cooked. The potato will absorb most of the salt. A crust of fresh bread serves the same purpose.

Scalding Raisins—Place raisins in a colander and pour boiling water over them. Drain, dry thoroughly with a clean tea towel.

Carpenter's Glue—Is frequently examined for moths. Place a damp cloth over any affected parts, iron with a fairly hot iron until the cloth is dry; the steam will effectively destroy moth eggs and maggots.

AIR PACKET WAS BLAMED FOR LOSS OF MOUTACHE

LONDON.—Gerald Bender, 37-year-old American, lost his moustache in an air pocket.

Explaining to immigration men the absence of the healthy-looking moustache shown on his passport photograph, he said it had blown in an air liner coming in from Paris.

"As I was shaving we flew into an air pocket. The razor slipped. There was no left side to the moustache. The rest just had to go."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

WINGS AND CHAPS

"An Act Of Stealing
Your Own Cattle."

HARZEL looked up with sudden fear. A plane? In this region? He thrilled at the marvelous picture it made—blurring over the rugged, deep-hued Sierra Madre. It was coming toward her. In a minute it was dipping between those stony old points, Tom and Ben.

It added a distinctly new note to the whole affair. Even with that well-earned self-possession and composure of hers a forbidding chill went over her. Did this mean that the plane circled now, as if for a landing. If it did land it must be on this mesa. Yes! It was touching earth. The wheels bounced lightly and then rolled gracefully over the tuffed ground. It taxied toward her, a white chapped figure on the horse that snorted nervously at this agile, hitherto unseen monster.

Never moving her eyes she watched the person who jumped lightly from the cockpit. Her premonition had been right. It was Blaine, her neighbor on the ranch just across the river.

"Good day," he greeted with exaggerated politeness. She flushed as she caught the subtle note in it. Was he mocking her? As he had other times?

"Good day," she returned, just as polite. "So you are an aviator—if nothing else?"

"Yes... Even if I do seem such a ridiculous greenhorn as a rancher to you... You see, I had my plane shipped here to me, as soon as I saw that I was going to like the scenery so well."

She flushed again. "New Mexico is far famed for its scenery," she snapped. Mentally she was asking just why she had been so disinclined to him ever since he had come, when she didn't at all feel that way. Not for the world now would she let him see this. Yet, she had always felt a certain contempt for what she considered his tenderfoot ways. And when he had offered to help locate her cattle that was something she hadn't noticed—was it ridiculous, why, not even the sheriff could find them.

"It is that you were out before daybreak this morning," he said. She looked at him with a start. "What of it? I'm often up early." She examined him with a new interest. "And how did you happen to see me?"

"I was standing beside a cottonwood at the stream when you left your horse drink. I suppose you never noticed me. But I recognize your white goat-skin chaps. I wager there isn't a pair like them in the next five counties. They are most becoming."

She wheeled her horse. "Save your compliments," she flung back at him.

Fashions

and dug her heels into her horse's flanks. He watched her for the briefest time. Then he drew a revolver and deliberately fired. She pulled up her horse so short that only expert skill in the saddle kept her in it. He angrily she wheeled it on its hind legs and the mount made a huge back toward him. Her gun leaped into her hand.

"What do you mean?" "Sorry! But I was afraid I could not attract your attention any other way. I have something very important to tell you."

"You! Something important to tell me?" "Just the name! Importantly, 'It'."

"Well, what is it?" He glanced at her closely, walking up to Prince, her horse, and slipped his hand into the bridle. "Won't you tell me why you were out so early this morning?" he asked gently.

Something hot stung her eye, but she flamed out. "What business is that of yours?"

"Because I've found out something. Has any new development occurred?"

She bit her lip. "Well, yes, if you must know, I've caught eight more steers disappeared last night."

"I thought so... What do you mean? Were you...?" "Connected with the disappearance? No? But I know where they are!"

"Here face went white. 'What?' "And also where the rest of the cattle rustled from the Double X ranch are hidden."

"How could you find that out? Everyone around has tried." "With Caesar, my plane... There is a certain valley hidden in the Sierra Madre off the head trails, yet not so distant... a practically walled-in oasis in a catcysal-mat area, peak and rock. Grass grows in it. There's a stream there, and also all the cattle ever stolen from Double X 8. And I know you're interested."

"You have no clues?" "His face was an enigma. 'I found out, risking my neck. There is a trail in and out, of course, known to only the person who drove the cattle there. I didn't even look for it. But I did find it. He took a wisp of hair from his pocket. 'I found it on a bush near a chap. It's white goat hair!'"

Her face went white. "You—yes?" "Yes, Hazel. You are now owner of Double X 8. Why have you been stealing your own cattle?"

"Suddenly her head fell. 'When she died so suddenly he had no time to get his affairs in shape. I know he had finished paying for the ranch, because he told me so the day he did it. But now the Development Company is going to demolish the mortgage they say he had on it... And I can't and a scrap of receipt or anything to show he did it. And so you have been rustling your own cattle to save that much from the wreck, eh?"

"And why not?" she flamed. "They're mine by right, aren't they?"

He laughed at her, quizzically. "A damsel in deep distress. And yet

By John Thomas Kieran

you spurred the written offer of my expert legal aid."

"You, a greenhorn?" she spluttered. And she self-asked. Why just tell me that I can take care of it. "Youself? Oh, no, you can't. And from now on I'm going to do it. You need it. For instance," he grinned, "remember that tempestuous note of refusal you wrote me on the back of an old envelope? It was your father's receipt."

Pick President Truman's Election
As Biggest News Story Of 1948

NEW YORK. — President Truman's election was the biggest news story of 1948 in the opinion of editors around the world. It appeared as one of the year's "ten biggest" on lists from every section of the world in the United Press annual survey of newsworthy events. It led many foreign lists. The struggle at Berlin and other developments in the European cold war also rated high on all lists.

United Press executives in New York chose the year's ten biggest stories from the standpoint of Americans. Their unanimous choice for first place was Mr. Truman's election over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. This list follows:

1. Election of President Truman.
2. The Berlin airlift and the cold war in Europe.
3. The high cost of living.
4. Mrs. Kaenken's escape from the Russian consulate.
5. Gandhi's assassination.
6. Death of Babe Ruth.
7. The Chinese Civil War.
8. U.S. spy investigations.
9. The founding of Israel and Bernadette's assassination.
10. Princess of Wales's independence.

The U.S. picked each of these, the Russian news agency, and the Moscow newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, chose the 10 biggest stories. They replied that they were too busy. However, judging from the display in the Soviet press, the Russians considered the following the 10 biggest stories:

1. The Berlin airlift and the cold war in Europe.
2. Soviet-American relations in general.
3. Organization of the union of Western powers.
4. The rift between Tito and the Cominform.

World Wheat
Yield Above
Expectations

OTTAWA.—World wheat production for 1948 is even bigger than anticipated, largely due to improvement in Europe, the bureau of statistics said.

The latest estimates place the world crop at 6,285,000,000 bushels, 35,000,000 bushels above the September forecast and 470,000,000 bushels greater than in the 1947 crop. The estimate is 15,000,000 bushels above the 1935-36 average.

Canada's 1948 crop was 363,500,000 bushels. Perhaps the "most significant" factor in the improvement, on a regional basis, is an indicated increase of 440,000,000 bushels over the 1947 crop in Europe.

However, the European wheat crop is still 127,000,000 bushels below the 1935-36 average.

Too the other hand, production in some European countries, notably France and the United Kingdom, has exceeded its previous estimates.

Although import requirements for current needs have been reduced to some extent in many European countries, there still exists a need to build up depleted reserve stocks and to replace high extraction rates.

Production this year in North America, according to the United States, was down from last year, when all-time record wheat crops were harvested in the United States and Australia, but total production is well above the 1935-36 average.

Latest estimate, with 1947 figures in brackets, follows: North America, 1,086,000,000 (1,174,000,000); Europe, 245,000,000 (325,000,000); Asia, 1,465,000,000 (1,405,000,000); Africa, 105,000,000 (120,000,000); Oceania, 190,000,000 (223,000,000); total, 6,285,000,000 (5,847,000,000).
